Renters get tighter condo conversion curbs

By TERRY DAVENPORT
Post Staff Writer

Protests by 100 tenants prompted Daly City's City Council to toughen up Monday what already was a stringent proposed ordinance to regulate conversion of apartments into condominiums.

One major provision of the ordinance is that current tenants are entitled to remain in their apartments without a raise in rent for at least 18 months.

It was 1:30 a.m. Tuesday before the council closed the public hearing, officially introduced the ordinance and read it for the first time.

The council is scheduled to vote on the ordinance after it is read for the second time, July 9.

As the 15 tenants who had remained throughout the meeting filed out of the room, all said they were too tired to discuss their opinions of the ordinance.

"We definitely will be meeting again," said Terri Grube, president of the Crown Colony Tenants Association, which had proposed seven additions to the ordinance not incorporated in the final version.

Most of the people in the audience were tenants of the 927-unit Crown Colony Apartments in Daly City, the first major complex being considered for conversion.

They repeatedly pleaded with the council not to allow the elimination of rental units in a city where the vacancy rate for rental housing is estimated at less than 1 percent.

But council members replied that they did not believe it is legal to prevent conversion and continued to review the ordinance.

Pointing out that there is no local law to prevent conversion, Mayor Victor Kyriakis said, "Unless we have an ordinance, we have nothing and it's open season on all of you."

Although the tenants lost their campaign to prohibit conversion unless the apartment vacancy rate in the city is 5 percent or more, they did succeed in having conversion linked to the turnover rate.

Under the ordinance, the owners of a complex may convert only a percentage of units each year equal to the average turnover rate in the complex during the previous two calendar years.

However, the ordinance allows all current tenants to purchase immediately if they wish.

The council also closed a loophole in the ordinance that would have allowed such major complexes as Crown Colony to divide their units into small increments and convert all of them at the same time.

The revised ordinance prohibits developers with 500 or more contiguous units to apply for any increment of less than 500 units.

The tenants lost their battle to have developers pay them a $1,000 relocation assistance fee but they won the right to stay in their units at no increase of rent for six months prior to an owner's notice that he intends to convert and 12 months after that notice is filed—a total of 18 months.

Other proposals by the tenants that the council rejected included:

TENANT VOTE—The renters wanted a stipulation that 51 percent of the tenants must approve conversion to condominiums if the vacancy rate is over 5 percent and two-thirds of the tenants must approve if the vacancy rate falls below 5 percent.

WARRANTY—The tenants asked

Schumacher to seek supervisors post

WILLIAM SCHUMACHER

Daly City City Councilman William Schumacher announced his intention Tuesday to run for a seat on the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors.

He became the first to declare his candidacy for the vacancy that will result if Supervisor Fred Lyon follows through with his vow not to seek re-election in June 1980.

Schumacher, 42, has been a resident of Daly City 21 years. He first was elected to the City Council in 1974, after serving on the Jefferson Elementary School District Board of Trustees, and was mayor of Daly City in 1978-79.

Schumacher was a police sergeant in Daly City for seven years and a deputy district attorney for the county before he founded the local firm of Schumacher and Fahres 13 years ago.

'Holding pattern'

Pair blasts budget

Bitter accusations from two local residents clouded the Daly City City Council's passage Monday night of a $5,872,000 four-month temporary budget.

City Manager David Rowe said the budget is designed to keep the city in a "holding pattern" from July through September.

Rowe said it wasn't possible to propose a full-year budget because the state legislature has not yet decided the amount of funds cities will receive.

He said he expects the legislature will do so prior to its July 21 recess, thus permitting Daly City to hold formal budget hearings in August.

The $5,872,000 budget is slightly less than a third of the city's 1978-79 budget of $17,798,000, according to Director of Finance Robert Green.

George Kirchhubel, a long-time council watcher, complained that the first word the public had of the temporary budget came at a study session last week.

He accused the city of taking one-third of the 1977-78 budget figures to draw up the temporary budget. Kirchhubel said that budget did not take into account cuts made following the passage of Proposition 13 and, thus, allocated more money for some categories than was budgeted during 1978-79.

Rowe said the budget only will allow the city to function at the same level it presently is operating.

Another Daly City resident, Ernest Pezzola, asked why the council didn't make the maintenance department a separate city department in the temporary budget.

He said he was bringing up that suggestion again because the council advised him several months ago that he should do so when the budget was being discussed.

But Rowe told Pezzola he should wait until the full budget hearings take place.

Pezzola promptly accused the council of "playing the old skin game."

When Mayor Victor Kyriakis tried to get Pezzola to sit down, Pezzola kept repeating his "skin game" charge.

Kyriakis finally ruled him out of order.

The council unanimously adopted the temporary budget with one addition: that recreation supervisors be added to Palisades, Northridge and Our Lady of Mercy playgrounds and that the summer recreation program be extended from eight to nine weeks, where possible.

He's of a tough, dying breed

But hard life enhances love of farming

By HEIDI VAN ZANT

Aldo Cuneo Sr. is one of the few remaining truck farmers in South San Francisco, but it's not just his profession that makes him so rare.

He is a hard-working, wise-cracking man of the earth who laughs with gusto as he recalls the days when a man had the habit of taking the law into his own hands.

The way Cuneo sees it, he still can call his own shots. Even his farm is a testament to what he represents: strength, stubborness and a look back at what it meant to live off the land.

His seven-acre farm on Old Mission Road is across the street from El Camino High School. Many homes, warehouses and busy streets surround the red barn, new produce stand and fields.

He acknowledges that being a farmer is not easy and he complains the taxes are too high, the hours too long and the rewards too few.

Yet, farming is the only career he ever has known and he doesn't plan to retire until "I'm six feet under."

Cuneo, who stands over six feet tall and weighs about 300 pounds, loves to eat, drink and laugh. He has a friendly, round face with eyes that twinkle when he talks.

This farmer wears a cowboy-style strawhat and worn, black pants held up with suspenders and a suntan that stops at his wrists and neck.

Longtime friend and manager of his produce stand, Rich Casanova, has difficulty describing him; he decides that Cuneo is a special person because he has "jolly independency."

Cuneo's only child, a 29-year-old look-alike named Butch, calls his father "a little crazy," quickly adding, "I wouldn't change anything about him. He's one of a kind."

How old is Cuneo? Ask and he'll probably, characteristically, joke, "One day older than God."

He is modest about his accomplishments and reluctant to talk about the personal details in his life.

With much prying, he says he was born 50 years ago in South San Francisco, when there were farmers galore in the area. Cuneo worked on his uncle's farm until he bought his own in the 1940s, refusing to leave farming to start another career, because neither his uncle nor his father could drive a tractor.

His parents, Giuseppe and Idalina, came to California from Genoa, Italy. They both are in their 80s, speak little English and are in excellent health. His mother still regularly works in the fields, against her son's wishes.

Over the years, Cuneo has farmed much of the homesites that now surround him. He has grown flowers, raised pigs and cows and grown produce that was sold to several large supermarkets.

Although he still sells some of what he grows to local markets, the bulk of what he plants is sold in his own produce store. His crops, fertilized only with horse manure, include several kinds of lettuce, beets, leeks, parsley and Italian beans.

Aldo Cuneo Jr. rides his tractor along a South San Francisco street.

Briefly, he puts all kidding aside to say farming is a hard life.

"Nobody should farm; too much work," Cuneo says. "I never worked so hard in my life. I'm the first guy here and the last to leave."

Vacations are not for him and he makes a practice of working weekends.

"I never want a vacation," he says. "I'm afraid I might miss something in South San Francisco."

He says he could give up farming, but he won't. Cuneo prefers getting up at 5 a.m. and farming every day to retiring and having to pay high taxes on the profit he would make from selling his farm.

While Cuneo professes a desire to give it up, Art Dollosso, a close friend and the police chief of Colma, says that it's not so.

"He really likes the dirt. He's like a kid," says Dollosso, recalling how he has driven by the farm at 3 a.m. and seen Cuneo planting potatoes.

When Cuneo is surrounded by his old friends, he loves to talk about what it was like in South San Francisco 30 years ago. The stories he remembers best are those about "country justice."

He and his companions howl as Cuneo tells of the time he waited in some bushes for a youngster to finish stealing some artichokes from his farm.

He remembers saying, "Nice job

'Little boxes made of ticky-tacky?'

TV show draws Westlake fire

Peter Markovich, director of the Greater Daly City Chamber of Commerce, said Monday he had received four complaints from local residents who didn't like a program aired Sunday afternoon on KQED (Channel 9).

In the program, "Toward Human Architecture," internationally-known architect Lewis Mumford criticized modern developers for building houses that do not take the landscape or human needs into consideration.

The portion of the show that caused Daly City residents to see red was a segment during which the song, "Little Boxes," was played and pictures of Daly City and other communities flashed on the screen.

It is commonly claimed that Malvina Reynolds wrote "Little Boxes" with Daly City in mind.

One chorus goes:

"Little boxes on the hillside
Little boxes made of ticky-tacky
Little boxes on the hillside
Little boxes all the same.
There's a green one
And a pink one
And a blue one
And a yellow one
And they're all made out of ticky-tacky
And they all look just the same."

Markovich said he objects to the negative portrayal of Daly City, particularly since one of the sections pictured — Westlake — was named one of the 15 best communities in the nation in terms of living quality by Ladies Home Journal several years ago.

James Scalen, broadcast manager of KQED, declined to comment on the program, which he said originated from WNET in New York and was produced by a former Bay Area resident, Ray Hubbard.

The program is available for all public broadcasting stations to air.

300 pct. rate hike proposal stuns sanitation directors

Directors of the North San Mateo County Sanitation District found it hard to swallow the 300 percent rate increase in sewer user fees that the staff proposed Monday.

District Manager Peter Archuleta said the proposed boost from 59 cents to $1.76 for each 100 cubic feet of water used is the amount that department heads of the district deem necessary to operate the sewage treatment plant.

Ironically, the district still is refunding overcharges from the current year amounting to $400,000 that resulted when the staff erroneously billed users at a rate of 88 cents per 100 cubic feet instead of the approved 59-cent rate.

To date, 16,000 of the district's 23,000 sewer users in Daly City, Colma and unincorporated Colma had received refunds.

Archuleta said he believes the proposed $1.76 figure will be trimmed before it is adopted because the directors objected strenously to a charge that high. They directed him to come back with some alternatives.

But Archuleta explained that an increase will be necessary to accumulate the estimated $4.9 million that the staff figures must be earned from sewer service fees to support a total budget of $9.6 million for 1979-80.

The budget for the current year is $7.4 million. Archuleta attributed the higher costs to the expense of running the sewage treatment plant at full capacity.

"We have just completed 12 months of full operation and we have experienced increases in costs — mainly the cost of supplies," he said.

Other higher costs will result from the district's water reclamation and methane recovery projects and its attempts to correct an odor problem that has prompted the Bay Area Air Quality Management District to cite it 33 times since November 1978.

The district has hired a consultant at a ceiling cost of $25,000 to design equipment to eliminate the foul smell. Archuleta said the cost of the facility will be approximately $300,000.

The district has already spent $115,000 building an enclosure to eliminate a noise problem with the plant that neighbors complained about.

The directors will hold public hearings on the proposed rate increase on July 23 and 30. Final adoption of the rate for the coming year is scheduled for Aug. 6.

All meetings will take place at 12:30 p.m. in the district's office at 153 Lake Merced Blvd. in Daly City.

that developers be required to guarantee the estimated useful life of all major mechanical and structural components.

REPLACEMENT—They wanted the ordinance to force developers to turn over a high reserve of replacement materials.

UNJUST EVICTION—They asked that a clause be added forbidding eviction of tenants who organize or join a tenant association.

The tenants appeared most bitter over the council's decision not to link conversion to a vacancy rate.

When City Attorney Albert Polonsky said he doubted the city legally could allow a vacancy rate provision, included in some condominium conversion ordinances of charter cities, because Daly City is a general law city, Conrad Pavellas of the Original Daly City Protective Association accused him of playing an old trick.

"Any time something comes up that he (Polonsky) is trying to stop, we are a general law city, not a charter city," Pavellas said.

Like many of the tenants, Ernest Pezzola of ODCPA complained that the council was aiding big builders rather than the people.

Kyriakis noted with a caustic voice that the council once had passed an emergency ordinance preventing apartment units in Pezzola's neighborhood, at Pezzola's request.

Edward Davis was one of several Crown Colony tenants who objected that he could not afford to buy his unit.

Compared to his present monthly rent of $280 for a one-bedroom unit, Davis figured he would have to pay $435 per month on mortgage, $46 per month of taxes and $125 per month on maintenance to afford a studio unit.

(Davis said he was figuring upon a requirement that he put 10 percent of the price of the $50,000 unit down. A spokesman for the company thinking of buying the Crown Colony complex said his firm is trying to work out a requirement that would allow tenants to purchase by putting down as little as 5 percent.)

If he moved to a comparable complex, Davis said he would have to pay at least $335 per month for a one-bedroom.

Ms. Grube said she makes less than Davis and asked, "What am I supposed to do? Where am I supposed to go? What happens to the middle-income renter? He is becoming an endangered species."

Over and over, Kyriakis said he didn't believe the council could solve the housing problems of the entire Bay Area.

Rena Clements, executive vice president of the Building Industry Association, an organization of general contractors and builders, stressed that conversion would make more entry-level homes available to persons who wish to buy.

She objected to provisions of the ordinance forbidding conversion of complexes with fewer than 20 units and a requirement that each unit have separate utility meters.

The council decided to let those conditions stand, as well as a number of other stringent requirements, including:

The filing of extensive paperwork outlining the condition of all units, the financing of units for sale and a maintenance plan

The filing of a use permit application and a tentative subdivision map with the city, along with the requirement that a public hearing be held before the Planning Commission

The Planning Commission's determination that the conversion will not have a detrimental effect on the environment or the community

Relocation assistance for tenants

The availability of at least two parking spaces per unit

The condition that each unit meets the city's building codes

Polonsky said no complex in the city can meet those requirements at the present time and estimated that it would take a developer a full year to complete the complicated processes outlined in the ordinance.

COLMA'S MUSTER WINNERS

you're doing," before running after the frightened thief.

"One thing led to another. Before you knew it, I had him on the train tracks, my foot over his throat. He was blue," Cuneo says, adding he did not realize how close he came to killing the young boy until his mother made him release him.

Cuneo also delights in telling of the time he figured out eight hobos living near the train tracks had stolen that day's lunch and four gallons of wine.

He visited their camp an hour later and found them passed out and the wine gone. He filled up a five-gallon gas can—but was talked out of setting the surrounding area on fire by a local police chief.

"I would have made them dance," Cuneo chuckles.

Least anyone think Cuneo is a grouch with a bad temper, his friend Casanova says, "He makes a lot of noise, but he's a gentle man."

Another friend says Cuneo is more generous than he lets on. He says he has seen Cuneo give away Christmas trees and many boxes of food to those in need.

"He's kind of a soft touch," says Chief Dollosso. "His heart's a big as he is."

The Public Voice

Editor:

Regarding Daly City Planning Commissioner Richard Silver's remarks in your article, "Silver Knocks Council," dated June 6, 1979:

Mr. Silver stated that the City Council acted improperly in rejecting a zoning change that would have allowed a 16-unit condominium project to be built at 1628 Bryant St. As a resident of 1616 Bryant St., immediately north of the proposed project, I would like to state my side of the issue.

It is my contention that the Planning Commission, rather than the City Council, as Mr. Silver contends, "didn't do their homework." For example, I expressed concern at one of the commission meetings regarding the height of the buildings and its shading effect on my solar water heating panels. I was assured by the commission that the architect would modify his proposal to guarantee my solar rights. This "modification" was not presented until the May 29 City Council meeting. In my opinion, the architect's modifications were nil and his findings unacceptable. Concern also was expressed by myself and other neighbors over the density of the project. Again, the commission apparently overlooked these objections as no modifications were made on the project.

Perhaps Mr. Silver is right in stating that "serving on the commission is a waste of time," if the Council is going to reverse commission actions. I would tend to agree, if this is the type of project the commission will be approving in the future.

I wish to thank the City Council for its common sense in rejecting a project that was totally out of place and poorly planned.

Youngsters can study jobs this summer

Youths in the North County can get a close-up look at different jobs this summer through a pilot program called Career Exploration.

Offered by the North County Youth Employment Program in conjunction with Jefferson High School of Daly City, the program allows youngsters to observe the everyday work environment at companies for three hours each day and a total of four days during a two-week period.

Since the program lasts six weeks, youths may observe work at several locations.

No actual work is required and the youths will not displace any current employees at the companies at which they observe.

Employers participating in the program are released from financial and insurance obligations for the youngsters. All costs incurred by the youths will be paid by YEP.

Youths and companies interested in participating should contact Marvin Marro or Joan Venturino at YEP's office at 405 Grand Ave., Suite 208, South San Francisco 94080; telephone: 952-7580.

Srock dismissal hearing is July 25

Daly City City Manager David Rowe announced Tuesday that the city has scheduled a July 25-26 dismissal hearing for Daly City Officer Stephan Srock beginning at 9:30 a.m. each day.

Retired Superior Court Judge Louis B. Dematteis will preside.

It will be the first time that a non-city employee will serve as the hearing officer.

The City Council approved the hiring of Dematteis after Superior Court Judge Melvin Cohn suggested that it might be beneficial to hire an outsider because of Srock's claim that the hearing will be prejudiced against him.

Srock, a Pacifica resident who has been a Daly City officer four years, claims that the city has attempted to prevent witnesses from testifying in his favor at the dismissal hearing.

The incident that led to the Police Department's recommendation that he be terminated was Srock's handling of a routine traffic stop in which he allegedly threatened a woman's dog with a gun.

Girl Scouts call all girls

Girls aged 6 to 12 are invited to participate in Summer Adventure '79, a recreation program sponsored by the San Francisco Bay Girl Scout Council.

Participants in the Monday through Thursday events need not be Girl Scouts.

There will be different activities each day from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., including puppetry, dancing, crafts, singing, games and excursions.

Cost of the six-week program, which began June 25, is $36 or $6 per week or $2 per day, plus a minimal registration fee.

It is being held at 101 Parkview St. in Daly City.

For details, contact the Girl Scout Council at 58 Cypress Lane, Brisbane 94005; telephone: 467-3330.

Two events sparked the social calendars of members of Friends Outside this past weekend.

The Millbrae Lions Club invited the prisoners' support group to take part in the annual wine and cheese tasting garden party at the estate of Phil Ritzau Sunady afternoon.

Prisoners' paintings, leathercraft items, and hand-tooled buckles were sold to party guests to raise money for the programs sponsored by Friends Outside.

Sunday evening a benefit disco party for Friends Outside was at the Valhalla in San Francisco. The group currently is attempting to raise enough money to send 150 disadvantaged children to summer camp. Support of fund raising events or contributions to the summer camp fund are appreciated greatly, according to Mrs. Louise Enberg. The Moose Lodge in Daly City was the site of a party given to celebrate the engagement of Lorraine Bonnici of Daly City to Fred C. Burgess of Napa.

More than 100 members of their families and their friends gathered to toast the happy couple and hear of their plans for a wedding next spring.

Lorraine is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bonnici and a recent graduate of Skyline College.

Burgess, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Burgess, is employed by a custom cabinet-making shop in Redwood City.

'There's more to music than disco beats'

By JANET PARKER

Some children stared in wonder at the deep-throated tones of the bassoon.

Others mimicked the flutist, positioning their hands and "playing along" as if they had flutes in their hands, too.

Many entered the program perceiving music as a rapid-fire succession of top 40 hits on the radio or trite commercial jingles in monotonous melodies.

But the 10 members of the Twin Pines Ensemble hope that hundreds of San Mateo County school children this year found out there's more to music than disco beats and electronic amplifiers.

"They get a chance to hear live music, which is getting rarer and rarer today," said violinist David Reffkin who has also taught public school in Texas and Minnesota. "It's a chance to discover certain types of music they've never heard before in certain instruments they've never seen."

"It opens their ears to music they usually hear from day to day but, as they hear us play, they become aware of inner voices they hear on the radio in the background," Reffkin said.

"We hope this gives the children an experience that is of a higher nature than most of the things they usually experience in music," said bassoonist Susan Willoughby, who has also played locally with the Oakland, San Jose and San Francisco symphonies.

"We're teaching them to learn to control their attention into listening more critically and more discriminately — to take the music apart, hear its different parts and then put them all together," she added.

The ensemble was created last September by a $122,000 grant from Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds through the San Mateo County Arts Council and the Pacific Philharmonic.

Ten then-unemployed professional musicians with impressive credentials — victims of a very competitive Bay Area musical market — were chosen to participate in the ensemble on the basis of auditions. The ensemble has been a full-time job for each of them.

Since the inception of the program, the Twin Pines musicians have appeared in some 15 schools per week throughout the school year in addition to numerous retirement homes, convalescent hospitals and senior centers. The lecture-demonstration format is designed to encourage audience participation and enrichment.

In the public schools, the ensemble is hoping to fill a bit of the void of slashed music programs, particularly in elementary schools where music is frequently being eliminated.

Usually, the woodwind quintet and the string quartet appear separately with the 10th member, pianist Vernon Gould, who was a soloist with the American Youth Symphony on a European tour, serving as accompanist. Programs vary according to the audience age but the one-hour woodwind program in an elementary school might go something like this:

Children wander into the auditorium while the ensemble plays a lively Rondeau by Purcell. The musicians are introduced and their instruments are briefly demonstrated. Then, a short piece emphasizing a different instrument each time is played. Children are encouraged to provide the "pops" in "Pop Goes the Weasel" and to raise their hands each time they hear the melody in a Beethovan rondo.

A thrill for some children is the chance to "conduct" the ensemble or "play" the bassoon.

A sure show-stopper for the strings is Bartok's "Diary of a Fly," a two-minute piece, after which children are asked to create a fitting story. Interpretations have ranged from one child's vision of her mother's car starting in the morning to a youngster who described a fly on his way home, bumping into a tree and falling dazed to the ground.

High school programs are more sophisticated, delving into musical composition and history.

The musicians themselves are as varied as the programs they present. In addition to Reffkin, the string quartet includes Pat Glunt, a violinist with the Stockton Symphony; Harry Tyldsley, who is a member of the Peninsula String Quartet and was principal violist for the Pacific Philharmonic; and Kris Yenney, a cellist with the San Jose Symphony and the Midsummer Mozart Festival.

The winds, in addition to Willoughby, include Herb Lashner, who studied oboe at Julliard School of Music; flutist Laura Schram, who was principal flute with the Pacific Philharmonic; Glenn Swarts, former principal French horn with the Pacific Philharmonic; and Don Tarshes, who played clarinet for orchestras in Boston and Los Angeles and in Hollywood studios.

They range in age from 18 to 53.

"Most of the schools still have music programs but they are heading toward their last years," Ms. Willoughby said. Arguing the case in defense of music programs, even when up against the basics of reading and math, doesn't intimidate them at all.

Reffkin said he believes music is a unique discipline among those offered in schools in that it uses so many different abilities — sight, sound, coordination, discipline, adaptability and social contact.

Too often, Tyldsley said, children without a music program are left at the mercy of the radio and a record player.

COMMENDED

Daly City Police Officer Robert Habermas, left, was awarded a department Certificate of Commendation recently by Assistant Chief Richard C. Sims, right. The commendation was for a routine traffic stop in the business district that led to the arrest of four persons on weapons and narcotics charges.

The cost of vandalism

Samuel Chandler

Vandalism, that ugly word which means an act of hostility or a willful destruction or defacement of things of beauty, haunts California and the nation and costs the taxpayers more money than they saved with Proposition 13.

Talk about fat in government. Fifty thousand additional teachers could be hired with the money used to repair schools after acts of violence. All the recreation leaders, arts and crafts teachers and librarians who were fired last year could be rehired if junior racketeers stopped breaking windows, destroying books and furniture, and writing on the walls.

In Los Angeles a teacher had her hair set afire by a group of girl students who became angry over the low grades on their report cards. A report from 1978 indicated that in San Francisco's Luther Burbank Junior High School, vandalism had become so commonplace that the costs of repairing or replacing school property had climbed to $24,000 a year.

Another report indicates that in Bellevue, Wash., teenagers threw homemade Molotov cocktails through the windows of a high school. The resulting fire cause $1 million worth of damage, ruined the school's learning resource center, and damaged 40,000 books and 10,000 periodicals in the library.

Such crimes are not foreign to Daly City or the rest of San Mateo County. Each year thousands of dollars are spent to replace broken windows and door frames in public buildings. The desecreation of public buildings is so widespread, officials are reluctant to decorate walls with murals and other wall coverings. Indeed, repainting desecrated walls in public buildings could occupy a full-time painter.

The attitude of an army of offenders was voiced by a girl who was caught in the act of destroying a public convenience. "Listen," she screamed, "this is public property." So, she and her kind bleed her taxpaying parents while the parents vote for measures that deprive civil servants of their jobs.

In the words of Daly City Police Chief David Hansen, the time has come to level with the kids, to let them know that they are responsible for the care of public buildings. They need to know that broken windows and defaced walls are a blot on their whole generation. They need to learn that violence in the schools deprives them of the caliber of education that $600 million would buy if it were not spent to fix buildings that have been mutilated, and to pay hospital bills for 5,200 teachers who are attacked each month.

They must realize that "The primary task of the schools is no longer education but preservation," as Sen. Birch Bayh observed.

Bayh, as chairman of the Senate Subcommittee to invetigate Juvenile Delinquency, wrote, "We found a critical national situation on our hands, and we also discovered that most parents are unaware of what is really happening in their own neighborhoods and schools."

The Senate committee found that the nation is gripped in a "head-in-the-sand" attitude, with many school administrators being reluctant to report vandalism because they are fearful of their students.

The senators learned that teachers and police officers come to suffer "depression, anxiety, hypertension, nightmares, blurred vision and ulcers" as they cope with monsters who destroy buildings and other facilities.

This caused Manford Boyd, Jr., of the Chicago Public Schools to write that we live in an atmosphere of mayhem. "Many hours of education," he writes, "are lost because of false fire alarms and bomb threats. Much harm is done to educational programs when classroom windows are shattered, teaching materials are destroyed or stolen. When students and teachers are fearful, an environment for learning is lost."

Let all the voters who want to cut fat out of government start by lending a hand to reduce the vandalism that grips our society.

DC Knights elect new Grand Knight

Raymond Thurman was elected Grand Knight of Marian Council 3773, Knights of Columbus, succeeding Cliff Hollander, who was made a trustee.

Other electees and their offices are:

Deputy Grand Knight, Brian Kestner; Chancellor, Nemer Gonzalez; Warden, Carlos Luna; Recorder, Fred Larsen; Treasurer, Ray Tschirgi; Advocate, Robert Hale; Inside Guards, Earl Geske and John Crawley; Outside Guards, Gary Connelly and Mel Tafoya; and Trustees, Cliff Hollander, James Haug, and Thomas Curr.

Robert Simon has been reappointed by the Supreme Council as financial secretary of the Daly City-based council, which represents North San Mateo County.

Marian Council also had ceremonies in honor of the Supreme Chaplain, Bishop Charles P. Greco, during which Raul Luna, son of the newly elected warden, received his Admission Degree into the order.

FBI ACADEMY ATTENDEES

Daly City Police L.T. James Barron, left, was graduated June 15 with the 117th session of the FBI National Academy at Quantico, Va., while Lt. Thomas R. Culley, right, begins the 11-week training cycle there starting June 30. Barron is the seventh Daly City department graduate of the academy course, which stresses studies in criminal law, management, behavioral science, education and communications arts, forensic science, and electives of particular interest to the student. Culley presently is commander of the Detective Division and director of the Neighborhood Family Project.

Help wanted

The following agencies have requested assistance from the Volunteer Bureau/Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County.

SUMMER YOUTH PROGRAM — High School students can volunteer in agencies county-wide this summer for work experience, career exploration or just fun with jobs in administration, data processing, parks and recreation, day camps, summer camps, and more. If the volunteer job you need is not on the list, the Volunteer Bureau will try to develop one.

PLANNED PARENTHOOD — The Pacifica center needs Family Planning Counselor and hot line receptionists days and evenings. Interested volunteers need to attend the next evening training from July 23 through July 26 in San Mateo. You must register by July 16.

RED CROSS — Volunteers are needed during the day in South San Francisco to help with general office, light typing and phones at least four hours per week.

FRIENDLY VISITING SERVICES — Volunteers are needed to make a friendly visit once a week to a homebound senior in their neighborhood.

PARENTAL STRESS HOTLINE — Volunteers over 21 to handle family crisis line for the county. Training lasts two weeks, some evenings and Saturdays beginning July 9 in San Mateo.

SUMMER RECREATION PROGRAMS — Volunteers are needed in the recreation department of Millbrae, Daly City, and at the Recreation Center for the Handicapped, Day Camp for the Handicapped for arts and crafts, counselors, instructors, etc.

Additional information about these and other opportunities are available at the Volunteer Bureau office in Burlingame at 342-0601. Interviews will be made in Daly City by appointments through the North County answering service, 992-0957.

Choke chains can be misused

QUESTION: It always bothers me when I see a dog with a slip-chain around its neck. I've seen pet owners pull on these chains until the dog gags. Don't you think it's cruel and that pets should only wear body harnesses?

—B. G.

ANSWER: Slip chains (choke chains) can be misused and it would be possible to injure a dog if a person were very violent in using such a chain. On the other hand, these collars are a valuable training aid and are almost essential when trying to control a large dog.

It is nearly impossible to control a 90-pound German Shepherd, as an example, with a body harness. This is especially true when the dog wants to run across the street and attack another dog. I'm afraid in this case my vote would be toward controlling the dog and using the choke chain, but be careful with it.

In the same vein, I can't understand those pet owners who use chain leads with these large dogs rather than a rope or leather leash. The chain leash can be painful to your hand when the dog lunges or pulls on it and, believe me, I speak from experience. In my hospital we replace those chains with cord as quickly as possible.

Q: I read recently that Dr. David R. Barnett was elected president of the California State Veterinary Medical Association. Is that you? If so, congratulations! I've read your columns regularly ever since they started.

—L. O.

A: Yes, I was elected earlier this year and will serve for one year. The CVMA has about 2,400 members, not large by some standards, but an active, vital organization and I am looking forward to a very exciting year in this new job.

Q: Our dog Sammy gets the "big shakes" and it seems to happen more than usual in the past month or so. He's a terrier and I always felt that this breed of dog was more nervous than others. He's almost nine years old. Do older dogs shake more?

—K. L.

A: It sounds like Sammy may be starting to develop epileptic form seizures. This is something that can occur in young and older dogs alike. Symptoms vary from shaking to full-fledged convulsions. You should have Sammy examined by your veterinarian, who can determine if there is a problem and, if necessary, what is the best medication for him.

Parents! Your child's first job could make a difference!

Look around. Some of the most successful people you know were once newspaper carriers! There's a good reason for that. Being a carrier is more than a first job . . . it's an unforgettable learning experience. It teaches young people how to use their time wisely . . . to handle money . . . to deal with different kinds of people. It gives them feelings of confidence, pride and accomplishment for handling an important responsibility reliably and well. And what's more, it's fun! Carriers get the chance to win great prizes and exciting trips and share experiences with other young people their own age. So why not talk to your son or daughter about becoming a newspaper carrier? A small part of each day can make the difference of a lifetime.

It's all quiet on the watershed front

Perspective

By ARVILLE FINACOM

If you regularly leave Highway 280 by the Larkspur Drive Exit in Millbrae you probably have noticed the earthmoving equipment gouging out the hill west of the freeway. Nearing completion is a $500,000 bike path reconnecting the Skyline Boulevard on the north with the section of Skyline Boulevd which parallels the east side of Highway 280 through Millbrae.

Back in the 60s when Highway 280 itself was under construction, there was some protest that bike riders no longer could follow Skyline south because of the freeway interruption. An agreement was reached that a trail system including provision for bikers would be developed along the eastern edge of San Francisco Water Co. land abutting the west side of the freeway.

Because projected construction was delayed so long, CalTrans, administers the highway system in California, gave permission in April 1978 for bikers to travel the half-mile on the freeway itself to span the gap. In fact, because they had gained this right, a number of biking organizations spoke out last fall against the expense of building the bike path link; saying it no longer was necessary.

CalTrans officials, however, have not been too happy with the present arrangement, which puts motorists and bikers into unanticipated jeopardy on a freeway designed for heavy motor traffic. Besides, the link fits naturally into the California Master Plan for Scenic Trails. But more about that later.

Ninety-two percent of the construction money comes from the Federal Highway Administration. Cal-Trans directs construction and the new path will be maintained by the San Mateo County Parks and Recreation Department. Since the route is on San Francisco Water Co. land, its cooperation was necessary.

Anyone who resides in San Mateo County knows something of the continuing dialogue about the water company land. Occupying 23,000 acre in the heart of the county, providing local employment for 150 persons, supplying close to half a million dollars in pre-Proposition 13 tax revenue, the watershed property with its chain of lakes and chapparal and tree-clad ridges often is cloaked this time of year in billowing falls of fog. Although it offers an unparalleled open space resource it does invite questions.

Why is it closed to the general public? Why can't it be opened for limited development and/or recreation? Is there anyone who uses the property? If we take the last question first and consider it in its broadest sense, the answer is that everyone uses the property whose city contracts for water from San Francisco.

Recently I talked with Gil Bendix, manager, Suburban Division, of the water company, in his office at suburban headquarters in Millbrae. He shared with me some facts about the land and its management.

Bendix acknowledges that the water company is not against peaceful, family type recreational use of watershed land, providing none of the activities affects water quality. Such quality control is essential if the department is to maintain the high standard of purity which has marked its supplies for some 100 years.

Bendix sees as the prime purpose maintaining the watershed area as a managed resources, utilizing any aspect of it possible in the public interest. This means maintaining fire breaks and fire roads to keep it from becoming a burned-over wilderness. It also can mean considering development of its compatible resources. For example, within its folded hills lie limestone deposits of excellent quality. Some quarrying has been permitted, but operations have ceased because of excessive runoff into the reservoir. Presumably, with satisfactory solution to the runoff problem, quarrying may resume.

Study of the natural history of the region as well as its people pertinence is open to qualified groups. Stone Dam, deep in the hills, bridging Pilarcitos Creek with its 100-year-old masonry arch, is covered with one of the finest displays of five-finger fern found anywhere. The narrow road approaching it from the north is bordered with man-set cobblestones. Along it, in a pass-by alcove, one finds a massive concrete flower urn, a reminder of the days when prominent San Franciscans traveled in carriages to picnic "in the country" in remote, rustic splendor beside the lake held back by Stone Dam.

Although picnicking at Pilarcitos Dam a few miles north remains popular with established Peninsula adult groups who arrange annually with Bendix for strictly limited permits, current problems with access to Pilarcitos and Stone Dam and the reservois behind them have developed directly from restraints on public acess to Sawyer Camp Road, which goes some five miles along the eastern edge of water company land from the top of Hillcrest Boulevard in Millbrae to Crystal Springs Dam west of the city of San Mateo.

Closure of Sawyer Camp Road recently by the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors to all motor-driven traffic except water company and county maintenance vehicles, eliminates for travel a half-mile section of road between San Andreas Dam and Skyline Boulevard, thus cutting the normal route to Pilarcitos. There are other maintenance roads which could be used to reach the western interior, but until these are upgraded, general public permit access to the lands west of San Andreas and Crystal Springs Lakes will be limited severely.

But as the land to the west falls under further restraint more access is considered for the eastern shore. Development of Sawyer Camp Road as a biking/hiking/equestrian trail fits into the California Recreational Trails Plan, a result of enabling state legislation in 1974. The trails plan, which contains boating, biking and hiking/equestrian elements as well as provision for development of trails and areas for off-road motorized vehicles, was unveiled in spring, 1978, after substantial public involvement at hearings throughout the state. A seven member, governor-appointed State Recreational Trails Committee oversees development and coordination by

Fair art entries are open

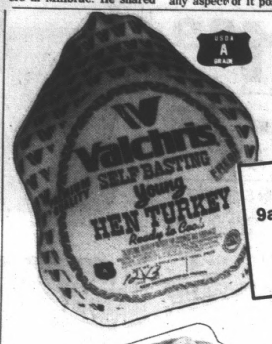
Wherever one's artistic inclinations may lie, original creations are being sought for the San Mateo County Fair and Floral Fiesta fine arts competition, to be July 8, 9, and 10, with the poetry deadline June 30.

Regardless of age or residence, anyone can enter one or many of the categories, according to Lois Kelley, administrator of the Fine Arts Division of the Fair and organizer of the competition. Categories include painting, (any media) watercolor, graphics, sculpture, ceramics, photography, jewelry, textiles, mixed media, video cassettes, poetry, photo-fiesta (amateur only) and the new category of cartoons.

Entry forms can be obtained at all county libraries, recreation centers, art supply, photo, video and crafts stores. Entered works will be judged by art teachers and working artists, photographers, poets, and others. Those entries chosen for competition will be exhibited at the fair, which runs July 23 to August 4.

Judging the fine arts division will be artists Frank Ashley and Betty Brader of Carmel, "Lemmy" of San Francisco, and Robert Toren of Cool.

San Jose State University crafts teachers David Castleberry and Jerry Meek will judge the crafts entries; Herb Mitchell, Walnut Creek photographer, will be the photo-fiesta judge; David Schutz will judge cartoons; Bob Matheson of Pacific Telephone and J. Winn Smith, Rick Zanardi, and Jim Threlkeld of KCSM-TV are judging the video division. Poetry will be judged by Natasha Borovsky-Hidalgo, Ben Sweeney, Cosette Dudley, and Mary Rudge.



ALL LUCKY STORES WILL BE OPEN 9am. to 7pm. Wednesday, JULY 4th for your convenience. Except Marin County Stores.

THE DIET CORNER

By Elise Gendar, the Diet Workshop

Fat and true, and sad and funny are the stories that come from the mouths of dieters. All of these anecdotes are genuine.

There is a woman in Massachusetts who was so determined not to go midnight snacking that she tied herself to the bed. She did not go midnight snacking — it took her until 1 a.m. to undo the knots.

A New York state man happily had impressed his wife with his diet determination. Then she went food shopping late one afternoon and spotted him leaving the market, gobbling an entire pie.

A Pennsylvania woman similarly was embarrassed. The special Sunday treat in her home was a half-dozen doughnuts. Despite her weight, she never ate more than one. One weekend her husband accompanied her to the bakery, where the truth popped out? "Why are you ordering 6 instead of 12 today?" the clerk asked.

A California housewife had a special padlock put on her refrigerator. She placed the key in custody of her family, but only after she had had a duplicate made and secreted for her daily hunger emergency.

You see, ex-obese people have rueful remembrances of frauds past. Whenever a group of us get together, we tell tales about ourselves. Those who always have been thin sit around such gatherings and snicker. They just don't believe that an adult would go to such lengths to deceive himself, herself, themselves. You have to have been fat to undertand and sympathize.

If some of these stories hit close to what you're doing at present, my advice is to take a good look at yourself in the mirror. Who's kidding whom?

There is no deception about this week's recipe. It's genuine diet delight, low in calories, with sound nutrition behind it.

HOT STUFFED MUSHROOMS

1 pound fresh mushrooms
2 tablespoon dried onion flakes
1 10-ounce package frozen cauliflower, cooked, drained and mashed.
1 ounce cheddar cheese, extra sharp, grated
1/4 teaspoon salt
paprika
pepper to taste

Remove stems from mushrooms and chop fine. Combine with onion flakes and mashed cauliflower. Stuff mushroom caps. Sprinkle with cheese and seasonings. Bake in 350-degree oven for 15 minutes or until cheese browns. Serve hot.

A suggestion for you if you've hit a diet snag. Sit yourself down. Look at your daily life. See it as others would see it. Pulling the wool over your eyes.

And if you have a funny-fat-and-true story, I'd love to hear it. Just write to me at The Diet Workshop, 2533 Taraval St., San Francisco 94116. I guarantee anonymity of name and location.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

It seems to me I finish off many, many recipe suggestions with the line, "Serve with crusty French bread." In this next recipe, French bread is a main ingredient in the entree, so my suggestion will be to serve with a crisp green salad.

HAMBURGER STUFFED FRENCH BREAD

1 loaf French bread
1½ pounds ground beef
3/4 cup chopped onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 teaspoon oregano
1/4 teaspoon pepper
dash garlic salt
1½ cups bread crumbs
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
one-third cup chopped parsley
1 egg slightly beaten
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1½ cups shredded cheddar cheese
Butter, melted

Cut the loaf of French bread in half lengthwise; cut off the ends. With a fork hollow out the center of the loaf, leaving thick crusts as a shell. Reserve the 1½ cups bread crumbs.

In a large skillet, combine the 1½ pounds beef, ¾ cups chopped onion, half-teaspoon salt, ¾ teaspoon oregano, fourth-teaspoon pepper and dash garlic salt. Cook, stirring occasionally until meat is browned. Remove from heat and add the reserved bread crumbs, fourth-teaspoon dry mustard, third-cup parsley, one egg, one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce and 1½ cups cheddar cheese. Blend thoroughly.

Fill the loaf with meat mixture; put top and bottom together; replace ends and secure with skewers. Brush with melted butter and wrap in heavy aluminum foil. Bake in 400-degree oven for 10 minutes. Loosen foil and continue to bake an additional 5 to 10 minutes. Slice crossways into generous slices and serve with cheese sauce. Serves 8 to 10.

CHEESE SAUCE

1/4 cup butter
1/4 cup flour
2 cups milk
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
paprika

Melt the fourt-cup butter in a saucepan; add the fourth-cup flour and blend thoroughly. Remove from heat and gradually add the two cups milk. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and loses starchy taste. Remove from heat, add two cups cheese. Stir until melted, add a dash of paprika for color and serve over stuffed bread slices.

"21 Days of America"
Your neighborhood Lucky Store is proud to bring you a very special TV event — the "21 Days of America". Every day through July 4th, 21 short vignettes will each bring to life a portion of our nation's rich history as depicted in the flags that have flown over her - from the Spanish flag brought by Ponce de Leon, to the flag that flies on the moon.
Tune in KPIX or KXTV!

Prices effective Wed., June 27th thru Tues., July 3, 1979.

soliciting public input, then advising the director of the State Department of Parks and Recreation.

To suit Trails Plan requirements, the bike trail along Sawyer Camp Road will be paved at a cost of approximately $200,000. New gates already have been installed, providing pedestrian, equestrian, and biking access daily on roughly a dawn-to-dusk scheduled. The road will be maintained by water company employees, with the San Mateo County Parks Department handling sanitation. County personnel as well as watershed workers are deputized to enforce ordinances and laws prohibiting loitering, littering, injury to wildlife, and travel by unauthorized motor vehicles.

Further public access to eastern shore watershed land is available in its southern section. West of Redwood City and south from Pulgas Water Temple, along the old Canada Road, a scenic trail is maintained. Docents from the Coyote Point Museum lead groups wishing to experience solitude and seclusion as well as learn about the area's natural history.

View spots at Pulgas Water Temple and Crystal Springs Dam are maintained as well as off Highway 280 north and south of Highway 92. High school and college coaches can obtain access to a cross-country track on watershed land west of San Carlos for their students. Some preliminary survey work may lead to development of another golf course. Crystal Springs Golf Club already skirts the northern shore west of Hillsborough.

But whatever its eastern shore development, my hope is that the western reaches of watershed land will remain indefinitely as they are today, basically undeveloped and unspoiled. We, in the Bay Area, need to know such places do exist.

Catcher, Coach Burt saw some good ones

Le Pacini

Rich Burt, the former Thornton and Jefferson high school principal who will be transferring to Westmoor High in the fall, has many things to be proud of in a long career in education, but when push comes to shove (someday I'd like to know exactly what that means), he'd much rather talk about his career in professional baseball.

Burt, who came out of Oakland in the days when kids like Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson were playing in the high school league (Burt led that league in hitting one year), was a catcher in the Detroit organization for several years before a shoulder injury forced him out of the game and into education — a gain for the latter, and, who knows, perhaps a loss for the former.

Burt is proud of the fact that he was the minor league catcher for Jim Bunning, now a Hall of Fame member. He also caught Frank Lary, who had a couple of 20-game seasons for the Tigers and was one of baseball's rare characters.

"You might say," chuckles Burt, "that Frank was not exactly a sophisticate."

What Burt is too polite to say up front is that Lary was a genuine hillbilly.

Burt's most vivid memory of Lary concerns the first day he ever met the big righthander they called "Mule." Larry reported for spring training, hit the clubhouse, and Burt had to show him how to put on his uniform. Leaving Lary to his own devices after the initial instruction, Burt went out onto the field. A few minutes later Lary appeared in perfect uniform. Except for one detail. He was still wearing his argyle socks under the regular baseball stirrup socks.

Burt also is proud of having coached Tug McGraw, the star Philadelphia relief pitcher, when Tug was going to Vallejo High School.

Actually, it was Burt who converted McGraw into a pitcher.

"Tug came out for the varsity team this one year," recalls Burt, "and he was just a little guy, except for his hands and feet, which were huge. He told me he was an outfielder, but frankly, he couldn't run and he couldn't hit. About the only thing he had going for him aside from his determination was a strong arm. So I sent him to the junior varsity team and told the JV coach to make Tug a pitcher.

"It worked out pretty well."

Burt's always been given to understatement.

Marino Pieretti Day at Candlestick was quite a tribute to the little guy with the big heart.

The formal pre-game ceremonies were impressive, but not nearly as impressive as the post-game informal ceremonies put on by the 150 special guests of Pieretti's who watched the game from the VIP room, which serves during football season as the 49er pressbox.

Baseball old-timers who hadn't been seen in years came out of the woodwork to honor Chic, and the press-box scene resembled more a class reunion bash than a group out to watch a baseball game. In fact, had a survey been taken after the game, it's doubtful if more than a small percentage of the crowd could have recited the score of the game, or even identified the winner. The several who never left the bar might not even have been too sure who had played, or that they were in a baseball park.

But all of the revelry was good-natured, and the stories funny if bawdy.

There was one scene straight out of a Hollywood comedy. The Candlestick security force uses the top row of cubicles in the press box as an observation point for spotting trouble in the stands. Several security guards continually scan the crowd with binoculars. Even though Pieretti's group wasn't necessarily supposed to ascend to the top floor of the pressbox, one small group of characters managed to balance their drinks well enough to find a small booth on the top floor right next to the security booth.

As the game wore on and the stories and lap-slapping grew louder, one could see those binoculars slowly shifting from the stands to the next-door booth of revelers, until finally the security men merely dropped the binoculars and observed the potential trouble (the trouble was in their suspicious minds) sans optical assistance, up-close and in their own neighborhood. It was a scene to remember. And a day to remember.

QUICK QUIZ:
Who was the oldest non-pitcher ever to appear in the World Series, and what was his age? Hint: he's still around and connected with baseball.

What manager of at least five years of big league experience has the highest winning percentage of all time? Hint: It's not who you think it is.

What current major league manager still holds a West Catholic Athletic League track and field record? Hint: He went to Serra High School.

Answers:
Willie Mays, at age 42½, was the oldest non-pitcher to ever appear in a World Series, when he played for the Mets against Oakland in 1973. Oakland, you may remember, was surprisingly extended going seven games before they finally beat back the stubborn Mets. Mays went two-for-seven, drove in a run and scored a run. He had gone one-for-three in the previous five-game championships playoff with Cincinnati, also driving in a run and scoring a run. Come to think of it, Willie probably is the oldest players of any position ever to play in a championship playoff game.

No, the winningest manager of all-time is not Casey Stengel, though it is a Yankee. Joe McCarthy holds that honor with a winning percentage of .614. Actually, Stengel isn't even in the top four. McCarthy is followed by Sparky Anderson (before) Detroit), who had a .596 going into this season, and Erarl Weaver (entering the 1979 campaign) and Billy Southworth, tied with a career average of .599.

Jim Fregosi, the manager of the Angeles, holds the WCAL long jump record of 23 feet, 8 inches, which he set in 1959.

Colts' versatile Ruzek: Athlete of the Year

By PAUL SALVONI

Roger Ruzek says he does not think of himself as a superstar.

"It's funny — with all this publicity, you would figure it might go to somebody's head," said the 6-0 Ruzek, who graduated from El Camino High last week. "But I read it, and then it passed by. I feel that I'm just a regular person."

Maybe so, but on the athletic field, Roger Ruzek was a very special person for El Camino this past school year.

On the football team, Ruzek was the Colts' starting quarterback, a starting outside linebacker and placekicker — and was chosen as the team's Most Valuable Player. On the soccer team, Ruzek was the starting center halfback — and the Colts' leading scorer. On Camino's baseball team, which won the Central Coast Section Region I championship, Ruzek was the Colts' ace pitcher and one of the team's strongest hitters.

In all three sports, Ruzek was El Camino's team captain. In all three sports, Ruzek was an All-North Peninsula League first-team selection. Ruzek was an All-County first team choice in both football and baseball — and he probably would have been accorded the same honor in soccer had an All-County team been selected in that sport.

Because of his outstanding efforts in all three sports this past year, Ruzek has been selected Times Male Athlete of the Year in San Mateo County. Ruzek gets the nod over a number of other fine all-around prep athletes — such as three-sport stars Ted Mitchell of Sequoia, Dave Ring of Carlmont and Charlie Brown of Hillsdale.

ROGER RUZEK

Ruzek was more than a great all-around athlete who was able to switch positions in both football and baseball, moving to give his teams help where they needed it most. He was also a leader, the kind of player that inspires teammates.

"He was the mainstay for us," said Tom Davis, El Camino's soccer coach. "He scored the winning goal for us against South City (South San Francisco High, in 2-1 match) on a free kick from about 40 yards. The goalie was ready for it, but he just drilled it right through his hands. And he also scored a goal for us against Jefferson (another 2-1 Colt win).

"If the forwards weren't scoring, he would score the crucial goal for us. And whenever we needed to shore up our defense, I'd move him back and he'd help us there. He had good endurance. I'd substitute less for him than for anyone else."

Davis said Ruzek's positive attitude is perhaps his strongest asset.

"Here's a kid who has all the natural athletic ability — but he never just went through the motions," said Davis. "It wasn't a case of a star not working hard in practice because he was already pretty good, or anything like that. He's a real determined player. I think he's definitely a college prospect in all three sports — but, of course, there just aren't as many soccer scholarships around yet."

Even though Ruzek's days at El Camino are now history, Davis thinks his influence on El Camino's soccer program may live on.

"Really, in soccer, I think he may have even helped our program," said Davis. "Very often, a good soccer player will stick primarily to that sport, maybe because he may be of Latin-American descent. With Roger, though, he was not a one-sport star, and his playing soccer might encourage other kids who play, say football or baseball, to play soccer.

"His attitude is super. During spring football practice (earlier this month), there was a kid (Scott Leet) who's going to be a junior. The coaches wanted to see if he could be a placekicker, so they left him with Roger, alone, and I think Roger made good progress with him. Roger didn't have to be out there, on his own time. But that's the way he is."

Ruzek says experience helped him become a leader.

"I've just been playing so long. I'm always out on the field," said Ruzek. "It's just my thing. I set an example in a way — but a lot of guys are just as good, if not better.

"I get satisfaction out of sports. It's just been my life — it's all I've ever done. Ever since I was a little kid, I used to throw the ball around with my dad (also named Roger). There was a family that lived up the street with six boys, and I used to play a sport with at least one of them every day.

"From there, they moved; but it just continued on to Parkway (Parkway Junior High). That's really when I started getting involved in sports. I like the competition, to be out there and doing something that you enjoy. It's fine to be great in the mind, but I don't like to be sitting around. I used to do that when I was in grade school; come home and watch TV. Then, when I went to Parkway, that just changed."

And now that his years at El Camino have ended, Ruzek — who will be attending Weber State University in the fall on a football scholarship — knows his life will be changing again. He says he will miss playing soccer and baseball.

"Soccer is probably my favorite sport — I'd put it on the top of my list," said Ruzek. "I enjoyed each sport. That's why I went out for each sport each year. I guess it's got to end sometime. It's hard to accept that. Even now: going home from school, my last year, my last game over with. And it had to end with a loss (a 6-3 baseball loss to Monta Vista in the CCS third-place game).

"Right now it's a bummer. But I guess I'll be starting at the bottom and then working my way up. I hope it'll be successful."

Ruzek, who enjoys bowling and hunting when he isn't on an athletic field, says he owes a lot to his father and a lot to the coaches at El Camino.

"My study habits weren't always too hot," said Ruzek. "But my dad kept on my tail to keep my grades up. When you're small, you really don't realize it, but it's the truth (that parents often know what is best). He kept me home sometimes when maybe some of my friends would be going to a show on a week night. So I owe him a lot. It seems funny saying it now, because he said I would thank him someday and see he was right. He told me you have to practice at things to be successful.

"And I can't say enough about the coaches here. A lot of people have downgraded him (baseball coach Lou Zuardo), but he totally changed my pitching motion. I used to not even wind up, but he changed my whole delivery."

Twice, Ruzek's versatility was severely tested this past year. Twice, he responded admirably.

During the very early stages of the 1978 football season, El Camino lost its starting quarterback to ineligibility. Enter Ruzek, who had been a good wide receiver as a junior. Lonnie Beckenhauer, the Colts' head football coach, shifted Ruzek to quarterback.

"At first, I didn't know," said Ruzek. "It was hard for me to learn all the plays right away. He (Beckenhauer) had told me before that we need a backup quarterback, but I still wanted to play receiver at first because I hadn't played quarterback before.

"After our first game, we'd won against Oceana, and that did it. It felt great. So I started getting my head into it: forget wide receiver. In the beginning, I'd figured I might be the quarterback for a while and then go back (to wide receiver). Then we kept working more, I started getting more blocking, I got to run with the ball a little more, and that was fun.

"About a third of the way through our season, It just became fun."

Fittingly, Ruzek made his presence felt in his final prep football game by kicking a 50-yard field goal, and an extra point, helping El Camino capture a 10-7 victory over archrival South City.

During the Colts' soccer season, Ruzek scored 10 goals, El Camino posted a record of 6-1 during the NPL season, good enough for a share of the league's round-robin championship with Jefferson, which went on to capture the NPL's playoff title.

"No matter what happens in the futre, I still love the game of soccer," said Ruzek, who plans to study business at Weber State. "Now I've got my program (for football at Weber State), but I still go out and play soccer, too. You get a lot more out of soccer, I think. It's not as rugged, but it's really an aggressive sport. Every minute, you're in the game. You can be the big man on any play. You can be the goalie and kick the ball all the way down the field, and a guy follows underneath it and shoots. You can be the big man on any play in football, too — but you're moving every minute in soccer."

When it came time for baseball season, Ruzek figured he'd probably alternate between third base and the pitching mound, as he'd done during his junior year. Ruzek says he had no idea he was destined to be the Colts' number one pitcher.

SSF's Robin Petrini is top female athlete

By SIMI LEE

The Jill-of-all-sports and master of them all, the top all-round prep girl athlete this year in San Mateo County is Robin Petrini of South San Francisco High.

Petrini has been chosen The Times' Female Athlete of the Year for her achievements in volleyball, basketball and softball.

The 5-3 multi-sport star beat out strong challengers for the award, such as Terra Nova's Becky Myers, the CCS basketball MVP, and versatile athletes Tisa Wagner from Crestmoor, Aileen Murray from Burlingame, and Kim Gaumer and Michelle Sanchez of Carlmont.

In some respects this was an "off" year for Petrini.

Right in the middle of the fall volleyball season she broke her foot in a post-game workout and wound up in a cast up to her knee.

For the average athlete,this would have signaled the end of the season. But not for the fiery Petrini. Dragging the five pounds of plaster onto the court, she played and helped win a game for South SF.

The problem was that the Warriors had a 10-year win streak on the line, and Petrini was the only player with experience on this year's team.

"When I broke my foot I just sat down in the hospital and cried buckets," recounted Petrini. "I knew coach (Ann) Stluka was counting on me — she relies on the seniors — and I had let her down.

"I kept coming to the practices though, and I'm glad they let me play again. I was going mental sitting on the bench.

"Volleyball is my favorite sport, because I just started playing it in my first year at South City and I know so little. It's a challenge."

Encumbered by the cast, Petrini became the North Peninsula League's first "designated server." In one game against arch-rival El Camino, Petrini smashed eight points — most of them aces — from the service line to win the second game in a 15-11, 6-15, 15-0 loss.

After firing a smash, she would clomp back to behind the baseline to cheer on the remaining five SSF volleyballers on the court; they played their hearts out.

South SF eventually finished second in the NPL with a 11-3 record and relinquished the league championship it had held for 10 years. It was significant to note that SSF held the NPL lead while Petrini was sound, and although the Warriors played will to nail down the runner-up spot, they were never the same without Petrini.

For her determined court exploits Petrini was selected as the Bay Area's prep "Sportswoman of the Year" by Fiecto company.

"Robin is a team leader who leads by being demanding of herself," explained Stluka. "Robin is tenacious, gutty, and loves challenges and is always pushing herself to perform at the limits of her abilities.

"She gave as much as she could and did whatever I asked of her," Stluka continued. "Robin had been a hitter in her junior year, and in the middle of the season I asked her to switch to setter, which she did without one word of complaint. She's a great team player. I have nothing but admiration for the way she plays."

Petrini eventually was named to the all-NPL team for the second year in a row, and was selected for last fall's All-County Volleyball squad.

Basketball came around in the winter, and although off to a slow start due to the slow-healing foot, Petrini captained South SF to a second-place NPL basketball title; the Warriors lost only to the eventual Central Coast Section champions, Terra Nova.

Petrini, the Warrior point guard, was her team's top assists player, and averaged 11 points per game in regular-season play, winning an honorable mention standing on the Times All-County basketball squad.

Then when the sun came out in the spring, out went Petrini to the softball diamonds where, in her first season for SSF (she played varsity baseball last year), she batted .561 to finish second in the NPL batting race. Her bat and her great fielding ability earned her spots on, the NPL All-League squad and Times All-County softball team.

ROBIN PETRINI

"What sets Robin apart from other athletes is her attitude," noted Stluka. "She loves challenges. In volleyball she never backs off, is smart, mixes power with finesse, and never lets mistakes break her concentration." So what is left for Petrini to attempt to conquer?

"I would like to play college ball — either volleyball, basketball or softball," admitted Petrini who has applied to the University of Utah and UC Berkeley. "I know I'm kind of small at 5-3 to play. But I'd sure like to try.

"It'd be a challenge."

Sports
And Recreation

Youth tennis planned at 3 DC courts

The Daly City Recreation Department is accepting registration for youth tennis classes, Session II. Classes are for those 7 to 15 years of age. Beginner and advanced beginner levels are offered.

This four-week session will be at three locations: Margate tennis courts, 75 Margate Ave., July 30 to Aug. 22; Jefferson High School, 6996 Mission St., July 31 to Aug. 23; and Westlake Park, 149 Lake Merced Blvd., July 31 to Aug. 23.

Resident registration deadline is July 25 and the fee is $2. Forms can be requested from Daly City Recreation Department, 134 Hillside Blvd., or call 992-5356 for further information.

Aerobic dance at Westlake

Mary Carrigan will instruct a six-week aerobic dance program for the Daly City Recreation Department during the summer months, designed for persons 16 years of age and older.

The six-week session will be at the Westlake Community Center. Participants may select a Tuesday and Friday or Tuesday and Thursday class.

DC team holds lead with Sunday sweep

A doubleheader sweep and a split took place in Sunday's Peninsula Joe DiMaggio Baseball League action.

Flying Goose of Daly City retained its hold on first place by sweeping visiting John's Deli of San Mateo 3-2 and 3-0 at Marchbanks Field, and Millbrae lost to host San Bruno 7-5 and then prevailed 7-1 at San Bruno Park.

San Bruno had lost 8-4 to Millbrae Wednesday night at Mills High, but it was a different story in the first game Sunday.

Southpaw Dave Paulus — who graduated from Mills this month after starring for Mills' baseball team during the past two seasons — cracked three hits, including a triple in the first inning, in Sunday's second game. In Wednesday night's contest, Millbrae got a pair of doubles from Kevin Walsh, who graduated from Burlingame High this month after starring for the Panthers for two years.

John's Deli out-hit Flying Goose 6-3 in the teams' first game, but eventually saw its league record dip to 1-5 and its overall slate slide to 11-10.

Principal Kollman reflects on 22 years

By STEVE KAUFMAN

Westmoor High School's longest-staying administration member, Principal Clayton Kollmann, will be taking a sabbatical next year and therefore will not be at Westmoor. In a recent interview, he shared his reflections, opinions, and dreams with this reporter.

Question: How long have you been at Westmoor?

Kollmann: I've been here since the school was built — 1957.

Question: All together, how long have you been affiliated with the district?

Kollmann: 26 years.

Question: Is there any particular reason for your sabbatical?

Kollmann: Well I just felt it was about time for perhaps a change, and after 29 years, it was due.

Question: What are your plans during your leave?

Kollmann: Well, I have nothing definite yet as far as outside activities — travel or anything. I will be working on a project for the district. I'll be working as a district liaison person with the Alternative Youths Facilities Committee.

Question: Do you plan to return to Westmoor after your leave?

Kollmann: I don't know at this time what the plans are concerning that.

Question: What are your reflections on the class of 1979, knowing how "unusual" they are?

Kollmann: In general, they are a very good class; some outstanding students, good school leaders, hard workers. I think that they are a very fine group of young people.

Questin: During your long stay at Westmoor, what major changes have you seen either in the physical surroundings or in the students themselves?

Kollmann: Well, of course the big change has been the problem — well maybe it's not a problem — the big change has been declining enrollment. We've gone down from a high of, I think, at one time, 2400 and next year down to about 1500. This, of course, has resulted in staff reductions for the past few years and also meeting an accompanying drop in course offerings and things of that nature.

Question: What has made the greatest impression on you in your years here? What things have made Westmoor a place which you enjoyed coming back to year after year?

Kollmann: Well, I think the greatest satisfaction I've had in the past years, is working with the students and the staff. I think I've been impressed particularly with the great cooperation of the total school staff. The teachers, my co-administrators, the classified, the clerical, the cafeteria, everyone involved in the school. The custodians, I think, do a fine job keeping the school clean; it's just been a very pleasant place to work and the cooperation has always been outstanding.

Question: As principal, do you find yourself left with very much time to yourself, or do you catch yourself working on school-related things in your idle minutes?

Kollmann: Well, it takes a lot of time as principal of the school. There are a lot of evening meetings, a lot of activities to attend, events that have to be supervised. We do, of course, try to share the supervision with co-administrators and faculty committees. But it does take a lot of time.

Question: We have to try and remember that principals are human too, so what do you like to do in your spare time?

Kolmann: I may take some long rides, travel, short trips. I work around the house a little bit, nothing especially.

Question: So principals are people too?

Kollmann: I hope so!

Question: When you arrived at Westmoor, you no doubt set goals for both Westmoor and yourself. What were they and did you feel that you accomplished them?

Kollmann: Well my main goal has always been to try and provide the best education possible that we can with the limitations that are placed upon us by budget, by class size limitations, or class (course) limitations and, in general, just try and keep the school performing smoothly with as few interruptions and problems as possible. That's about all you can ask.

Question: Very few students have ever seen you, let alone met you. How much student contact do you make in your job?

Kollmann: The nature of the job, depending on the time of year and so forth, sometimes requires a lot of time in the office. I try to get out in the halls when possible, check in the cafeteria and to supervise but unfortunately, I just don't have the time to get out and go around with the students. I make classroom visits on teacher evaluations. Some students I see all of the time, if they're involved with student activities and so forth, but unfortunately I don't get to see a lot of the students.

Question: Do you find this to be a disadvantage?

Kollmann: Yes, because you don't have the students contact which would perhaps, be more desirable.

Question: Many students find four years of high school quite enough. After their years are up, they are amazed that they actually made it. Quite obviously, you've been here for longer than four years. Could you tell (us) what your philosophy is concerning how you do it?

Kollmann: Well, I think anyone in school or in education today has to have a kind of give-and-take attitude. You have to sort of roll with the punches, you have to be rather patient, rather understanding, and I think you have to take one day at a time and try to understand the problems of the students and staff. Not over-react and perhaps to think before you make a rash decisions or rash judgements. You have to just take it one day at a time and try to be fair and reasonable in your demands and requests.

Question: What were some of the most difficult problems you have ever had to face in your years at Westmoor?

Kollmann: I would say the problems that created some great difficulties in the past — of course in the 60's you had the general student unrest. You had the drug situation which was bad at certain times. One constant problem, of course, is the area of human relations where students may be involved in different . . . not riots as such, but student to student confrontations with the possible threat of a riot in the future. Student control, student unrest, I think, always represents a problem.

Question: What did you teach?

Kollmann: Social Science.

Question: Why did you give up teaching for this type of administrative work?

Kollmann: Well, ordinarily It's like any other life work . . . you can try and improve and go up the professional ladder as it were. The natural step from teaching is to try and go into some kind of administration and I've gone through all the various co-administratorship roles until I reached the principal ten years ago.

Question: Have you any dreams for seeking a higher office, say that of superintendent or the like?

Kollmann: No, I have no further desires in this field.

Question: Any other reflections?

Kollmann: Well, as the time gets close to June 15, of course, I have mixed feelings about leaving. I have spent 21 years at Westmoor and one year at Jefferson during double session as a Westmoor Administrator. I have had some very fine experiences in this school. As with everything, there has been some good times and some bad times and you just have to learn to live with that.

I think I have been most fortunate in having what I consider an outstanding group of people to work with. I've always felt that any success we may have had as an administration at Westmoor or as a school is due to the hard work and cooperation of the total school staff — students, community, parents, everyone. I've had good cooperation with the community, the PTA in particular has been helpful in many activities through the last 21 odd years. They've always come to the forefront when we've needed help or money or whatever. I'd like to give a special thanks to the PTA.

The students, I think, have always presented a good front to the public. We've gotten many commendations from visitors for our school and I think it's a school which I can be very proud of being associated with for this number of years. As I look back, I have many thoughts about it.

SSI checks to be more next month

More than 700,000 Californians who receive gold-colored Supplemental Security Income (SSI) checks can look forward to a cost-of-living increase in their July payment, according to Margaret Tang, social security district manager in San Mateo County.

Approximately 11,000 needy aged, blind, and disabled people in San Mateo County will be affected.

SSI payments will be increased by a maximum of $21.40 a month for aged and disabled persons, $24.40 for blind persons, and $39.60 or more for eligible couples.

The new combined federal and state-funded SSI payments starting in July in California will provide a maximum of $329 for persons 65 or over, and to disabled persons under 65, and $370 to blind recipients. Aged couples can get as much as $614 a month.

The SSI program pays monthly checks to people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 and over or blind or disabled. The amount people get depends primarily on other income they might have, and their living arrangements.

A cost-of-living increase also will be added to social security retirement, disability, and survivors benefits, starting with checks for July. Social security checks count as income under the SSI program.

SSI is not the same as social security, even though both programs are administered by the Social Security Administration. The money for SSI checks comes from the general funds of the U.S. Treasury and from state funds, Ms. Tang said. Social security benefits are paid from contributions of workers, employers, and the self-employed.

A person may own a home of any value and still be eligible for SSI, if other income and resource conditions are met. Persons who think they might be eligible for SSI should contact their local social security office.

Bachelor's degrees went to Marsha Ann Ramirez, business administration; Sean Patrick Sullivan, business administratipn; Bernard Adams, psychology; Jason Bennet Hartman, earth science; and Deborah Elaine Magee, business administration.

Master's degrees went to: Joseph Anthony Galletta, psychology; Grace Darlene Corna, public administration; Richard Gordon Reid, education; Irma G. Dabbs, counseling; and Joseph Clyde Ducan III, public administration.

Royer to push cost effect bill

Congressman Bill Royer (R-Redwood City) has announced he is co-sponsoring legislation, HR 3697, which would require the Congressional Budget Office to estimate the cost to state the local governments of each federal bill reported by a Senate or House committee.

"As a member of the Board of Supervisors, I was painfully aware of the increasing costs of meeting federal mandates to the taxpayers of San Mateo County," Royer states. "This legislation is the first step to make the members of Congress aware of the potential costs of legislation to the counties, cities, and schools in our nation."

"The realization that every dollar spent by local government for federally mandated costs deprives local taxpayers of services should go a long way in requiring the the House of Representatives and Senate be more responsible in their legislative enactments," Royer concluded.

Villa Rosa offers $1 off on any dinner

You're always hearing about someone finding one of those little Italian restaurants where there is nothing fancy except the food, which is the real thing — home cooked, bountiful, delicious, and low priced. Well, VILLA ROSA in Redwood City (on the West side of El Camino just south of Jefferson) is one of those restaurants. Owner/hostess/chef and everything else is ROSE PATRUNO, an energetic Italian lady who loves to cook. Many will remember her from 10 years at Luigi's on Columbus Avenue in San Francisco and seven years at Frank's New Yorker in Millbrae. From now until the end of July, Rose is offering $1 off on any dinner (starting as low as $3.90) served complete (soup, salad, pasta, entree, coffee, and dessert) ... LEHR'S CABARET DISCO has been one of San Francisco's most popular and exciting dance spots since the day it opened its doors. And now there is even more reason to stop by Lehr's for an evening of music and dancing. With your paid admission, you receive a handsome, gold, collector's item King Tut stickpin, free of charge ... To make it possible for all their employees to plan a vacation each year, NINA LICATA and her son, manager TONY LICATA close VINCE'S ITALIAN and SEAFOOD restaurant for a short period. This year they are closed from June 17 through July 8 (as is the adjoining Fresh Fish Depot). Both will re-open on July 9.

Finocchio's Shows now six nights

FINOCCHIO'S, now open on its summer schedule six nights a week (closed only on Mondays), sets the mood for an evening of great entertainment by presenting the attractive EVE-ETTES chorus line with a striking entrance number to "Strike Up The Band." The four nightly shows feature an all-star cast of talented entertainers to keep the conversations flowing ... Whether you're getting an early start in the morning or getting home late from the night before, it's nice to know there's a friendly little place called JOHN'S PLACE in the heart of downtown Burlingame where you can get a good breakfast or whatever else you may want to order in a bar and grill that's open from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. ... With a formula like all-you-can-eat buffet lunches ($2.55), dinners ($3.99) and a Sunday champagne brunch ($3.19), it's no wonder THE KING'S TABLE in Redwood City is a real winner. Owner NORM LARSON says there's dancing nightly now ... Diners who know and recognize the subtleties of preparation and flavoring of true French cuisine are hailing the genius of ROGER NICOLAS, who is bringing a new high level of elegant food and wine to his new LA POTINIERE French restaurant in the Mateo Square complex in downtown San Mateo.

Brass Elephant has lavish salad table

Countless numbers continue to make the happy discovery that dining in the BRASS ELEPHANT restaurant/lounge at the GROSVENOR AIRPORT INN, South San Francisco, is not only enjoyable but so affordable. A salient feature of luncheon or dinner is the "Super Salad Table," which is 20 feet of 25 delectable choices. Available with lunch or dinner or by itself. Either way, you owe it to yourself to see just how lavish a salad table can be ... Things are booming over at NICK'S, Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, including the booming surf, which at high tide comes right up to the seawall and provides patrons with a pulsating panoramic tableau through the huge picture windows. There are also CAPTAIN CHARLES for gourmet seafood and THE MOONRAKER for continental cuisine ... The same generous spirit that pervades her service to patrons also extends to her own people at TILLIE'S 'LIL' FRANKFURT German and continental restaurant in Moss Beach. Owner/chef TILLIE SCHOLTZ has an annual tradition of closing the restaurant for a few days just so she can take her entire crew for a "family" vacation junket. Tillie joins in and pays for it as a gesture of appreciation to her staff. Regularly closed on Tuesday, Tillie's also will be closed June 27-28.

Celebrities dine at Phil Lehr's

PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Gram STEAKERY, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, has long been a favorite dining spot for radio and television personalities, and there is always someone famous dining here. Seen the other night were KRON-TV news anchorman John Hambrick and KRON sportscaster Barry Tompkins ... A best bet for post-theater dining at ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of San Francisco's Geary Street "Theater Row," is "England's Great Pub Sandwich." It's fried oysters and Canadian-style bacon, served on a toasted English muffin with French mustard, Hollandaise sauce, shoestring potatoes and sweet pickles ... Super Burrito, a large flour tortilla stuffed with guacamole, sour cream, beans, rice and your choice of beef, pork or chicken, and the Chimichanga, a deep fried tortilla filled with shredded beef, beans and melted cheese, garnished with guacamole and sour cream, are new items on the varied Mexican menu at LA PINATA in downtown Burlingame ... Although Willie Mays was in New York on his wife's birthday, a gala dinner party in her honor was held at JIM SNIADECKI'S SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S in Redwood City ... ENRICO ROMANO makes it easy to make a choice among spaghetti, ravioli or one of the other pasta specialties at his ROMANO'S Italian and Seafood restaurant in Rockaway Beach. He offers several pasta combinations on his menu ... ... All the news is good news from BARNEY'S and the SOUTH TAHOE NUGGET, popular companion clubs/casinos at beautiful South Lake Tahoe. No gasoline problem due to resourceful planning. Also, a new double-action coupon of greater value is now available and can be picked up free at any of the 14 stops on the way up, via Highways 80 and 50 from Vallejo onward ... Under the inspired direction of Manager LOUIS ORSINI, service at the elegant PRIME RIB INN in Palo Alto is a match for the exceptional cuisine.

San Bruno okays lease for seniors

An "unorthodox" lease to allow a senior citizens facility in the former Edgemont School was approved in concept by the San Bruno City Council Monday night.

Although unorthodox, there is nothing odd about the proposed lease, which will go to the Board of Trustees of the San Bruno Park School District Thursday night.

The trustees are expected to approve the lease.

"The proposed lease is unorthodox, as has been our relationship with the school district over the last few years," said City Manager Gerald D. Minford.

"The degree and type of cooperation that exists has been in the best interest of the taxpayers and has allowed the school district and the city to accomplish things that could not otherwise have been accomplished," he said. "A great deal of money has been saved because of the willingness of the two agencies to share manpower, equipment, buildings and properties."

As it is proposed, the lease for Edgemont, 500 Acacia Ave., which now houses the school district's administrative offices, would be for five years, with a five-year option to renew. It calls for the city to pay $25,000 per year for the lease, contingent upon the availability of revenue-sharing money or similar funds.

However, if such funding is unavailable, the city would not pay any money for the use of the facility but would help the school district seek alternate outside funding.

The city would be responsible for remodeling of the facility, equipment costs, structural repairs, painting and plumbing, asphalt repair and utility costs of the senior center.

In addition, the lease states that the city would consider annually — without obligation to fund — applications by the school district for use of revenue-sharing funds.

Possible funding programs could include after-school sports, play equipment on school sites which serve as neighborhood parks and burglar alarm systems for the schools.

If the trustees approve the lease and the council gives its final approval, local senior citizens will have a long-sought facility.

Many seniors had hoped that the former Hatlo Market downtown would become that facility, but voters — and later the City Council — rejected the idea last year.

One of the staunchest opponents of the Hatlo site, Councilman John Barnard, wholeheartedly endorsed the Edgemont proposal.

Years ago, Barnard said, the city and the school district "acted in competition. Thank God, those days are over. We now use the same items, and it saves us both money. I opposed the Hatlo, but this is a great idea."

Only Councilman Doug Dawkins opposed the Edgemont facility lease.

"The city could use $25,000 a year as well as the school district," Dawkins said. "It's their foot in the door. First it will be $25,000, then $50,000, then $75,000. I don't like getting into the school business."

However, the rest of the council was not convinced, and approved the lease in concept 3-1, with Councilman Tom Ricci absent.

"I'm in favor of a close, working relationship," said Councilman Gary Mondfrans. "The agreement serves a program that the community wants."

Mondfrans also accused Dawkins of trying to destroy a long-standing relationship between the city and the school district.

"We shouldn't throw up roadblocks," he said.

Minford, in explaining the lease to the council, said, "Both agencies serve the same citizenry, so the exchanges have been mutually beneficial to the agencies. But more importantly, it has provided facilities and services and saved money for the people we both serve."

Those exchanges include the city's use of all of the school sites — in one form or another — for gymnastics programs, social dance classes, square dance programs, a senior citizens nutritional program, sports and playground activities, a clothing class and for city personnel testing.

On the other hand, the district has used city equipment when necessary, including a jack hammer, a concrete saw cutter, a concrete mixer and a sandblaster. The city also has used a school district electrician and the district's tractor and shop.

"The use of the Edgemont School facility for a senior center is but another joint effort to meet a community need," the city manager explained.

"The circumstances, however, are somewhat different than they have been in the past. The school district is in a financially difficult position, with an inability to balance their budget without drastically reducing services within the community.

"The city, on the other hand, is at the present time on sound financial footing. It appears that the city is in a position to cooperate with the school district to assist during their economic crisis," Minford said.

"Since we both serve the same public, such an action seems in the best interests of the community."

Addad takes Army course

Pvt. Kenneth F. Addad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Addad, 1153 Nimitz Drive, Colma, recently completed seven weeks of advanced individual training at Fort Benning, Ga.

The training included weapons qualifications, squad tactics, patrolling, landmine warfare, field communications and combat operations. This qualified him as a light weapons infantryman and as an indirect fire crewman. Addad entered the Army in February of this year. He is a 1979 graduate of Westmoor High School.

DC soldier ends basic

Pvt. LeBraska Hargrove, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. LeBraska Hargrove, 4305 Callan, Daly City, recently completed basic training at Fort Jackson, S.C.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions. Hargrove entered the Army in February of this year.

ACCEPTABILITY:
The Times reserves the right to reject, censor and properly classify any advertisement.

THE FIRST WORD of each 8 point type ad will be spelled out. Abbreviations will be accepted on the first word in 12 point or larger type lines. However, any ad that does not begin with an alphabetical character will not be in alphabetical sequence.

DEADLINE. Classified advertising must be placed by 12:00 noon day preceding publication, Monday through Friday. 12 noon Saturday for Monday's publication and 48 hours preceding holidays.

CANCELLATION: Cancellation orders must be received before 3:00 p.m. on the day preceding publication for all line advertisements appearing in The Times from Tuesday through Saturday and before 12 noon Saturday for Monday's publication. Display Classified must be cancelled in writing 48 hours prior to publication date.

ERRORS: No responsibility is assumed by publisher for errors in any advertisement covered by order, nor for the omission of any advertisement in whole or in part, nor for failure to comply with the placement of advertising as ordered either as to frequency or volume. In no event shall publisher be liable for special damages or consequential damages even if it has been notified of the possibility of such damages.

Errors in published advertisements must be reported immediately, and if done, publisher will publish an appropriate correction and where publisher deems it necessary a rerun of the advertisement as corrected, if in publisher's judgment the error substantially varies the meaning of the advertisement as ordered. Such corrections will be made only as to those advertisements which are ordered for one insertion, and as to the first insertion only when ordered for more than one insertion.

LOGIC
is no substitute for emotion when you're falling in love. We find it irresistible and think you will too. The decor is enchanting to be sure but some say this Biarritz model is the most desired and best selling in all of Foster City. Extremely attractive from the street, the mood is never broken, the creative design is subtle and pleasing. The bedroom down can easily be converted to a den or conversation nook off the family room. Off the master suite is a sunken sitting area, in this case cheerfully decorated. The stairs seem to cascade to the subtle serenity of the living area below. This 4 bedroom, 3 bath home is priced quite modestly at $179,500.
AMBROSIAL
delights begin in the garden and flow throughout this happy home of bold and cheerful color. It's bright and light, well kept and inviting. In back there is a secluded above ground pool with elaborate redwood decking, attractive in design and affording fun and relaxation alike. Up the sweep of stairs are four bedrooms, pleasantly arranged, all spacious and accommodating. There are 3½ baths, family room and the wonderful family environment of Foster City. A large, large home for $195,000.

Important Note Regarding Prices

The prices shown in the right-hand column on each page of this catalog are for reference only, and no representation is made to the effect that any of these prices is the usual or ordinary price at which a particular item is sold.

Most of the prices shown in the right hand column are manufacturer's suggested retail prices supplied to Consumers Distributing. Where manufacturers do not supply suggested retail prices, Consumers Distributing has applied to its cost mark-up percentages based on trade customs (which commonly vary with respect to various types of items) to arrive at a price which it considers to be in accordance with customary trade practices. In any event, these prices may vary in different trading areas depending on shipping and other costs and circumstances which might affect such a price. No representation is made to the effect that any of these prices is the usual or ordinary price at which a particular item is sold.

No user of this catalog should assume that a savings will be effected or realized in an amount equal to the difference between the figure in the right-hand column and the Consumers Distributing price. In some cases, other retailers may be selling goods at prices equal to or less than Consumers Distributing price for the purpose of clearing goods which are end-of-line or stale merchandise, or by reason of their ordinary business practices.

•All prices are subject to change without notice due to manufacturers' increases or decreases, changes in federal or state taxation or world fluctuations of the prices of gold, gems and precious metals.
•We're only human so the occasional error may slip through. We are not responsible for typographical and transpositional errors.

•A copy of all Manufacturer's Warranties is available at any of our showrooms.
•If ever temporary shortages of our advertised items occurs, you are assured the special price on a resupply, or comparable savings on a similar item.
